VOLUME XVII, NUMBER 11

Washington Snapshots

by JAMES PRESTON

While there is no indication that either Congress or President Roosevelt is ready to recede a step in the show-down struggle to control major government policy, Congress is preparing a weapon with which to fight back.

This weapon is the Fair Government Practices bill introduced by Representative Gwynne, Iowa Republican. It is designed to restrict by law the now loosely controlled conduct of government departments, boards, bureaus, and commissions, and to achieve the general purpose of the Walter-Logan bill passed by Congress and vetoed by the President. Such a measure would restore to Congress control over administrative policies and procedures, and give the houses opportunity to end the encroachment by the White House on their authority.

Representative Gwynne describes his measure as "a bill to designate and make uniform those administrative practices and procedures which are generally recognized as fair and equitable to the citizen and essential to orderly and efficient government."

Mr. Gwynne told the House that his bill would accomplish the following:

Make available to the public complete information regarding government rules and regulations, so that citizens affected by them can be fully advised of their rights and obligations under the law.

Protect the public against "fishing expeditions" by limiting the freedom of investigations, reports, and questionnaires to the minimum requirement of law enforcement and efficient government administration.

Prevent the invention by government agencies of new or special penalties or restrictions not expressly authorized by the Congress.

Restate the basic rules covering the availability and scope of judicial review so that the citizen may readily determine the nature and extent of his right to "day in court" to contest arbitrary or unlawful acts of administrative officials.

Undertake to create a better understanding between the citizen and his government by giving the citizen a better opportunity to have a voice in the making of rules and regulations which affect his welfare and livelihood.

After the program, Mrs. Ernest Cockman, president and hostess for the meeting, served a dessert course.

Bible Story Contest Held At Local Y.

Fletcher Clay Wins In The Intermediate Division With Julius Moore In The Junior

The Bible Story contest, an annual event in the Boys' department of the Cone Memorial YMCA, was held Sunday afternoon, March 12, in the Biblical room of the White Oak branch. Fletcher Clay won first prize in the intermediate boys' division, with his telling of the story of the life of Joseph. Herbert Hanner was second place winner, and Pete Faircloth was awarded honorable mention. Herbert told the story of the friendship of David and Jonathan. Pete gave the story of Sampson.

In the junior boys' division, little Julius Moore won highest honors with the able manner in which he told the story of the Garden of Eden. For such a young fellow, Julius showed unusual talent and ability at story telling, and won the admiration of all. Claud Owen won second place in the younger group, telling the story of the children in the fiery furnace.

Owing to the bad weather, several of the boys who were to have competed in the contest did not appear. Twenty-five boys participated in the telling of stories during the preliminaries, the semi-finals and finals of this year's contest. The judges were as follows: Rev. A. P. Dickson, Mrs. Nettie Hoge, Walter L. Thorburn, Raymond Kincaid, and M. O. Ayers. The prizes were leather-bound and gold-edged leaf Testaments were presented to the winners by the general secretary, Mr. A. S. Arnold.

The Bible Story contest has been an annual event in the Boys' department of the local YMCA, over a period of nine consecutive years, the idea having originally come from the Jerusalem YMCA in Palestine, when Mr. and Mrs. Arnold were guests of honor at the finals of the Jerusalem YMCA Bible Story telling contest in June, 1934. Jewish-Gentile and Arab boys participated, speaking in their native language. During the period of the promotion of these contests in the Cone Memorial YMCA, sixty or more Bibles or Testaments have been awarded boys of the villages for meritorious work as Bible Story tellers. The boys who participated in the first contests are grown men now, and some of them are in distant parts of the world in the armed service of our country.

PRINT WORKS SNAPPERS

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Barnes are continuing their vacation at Winter Haven, Fla., and surprised the office force with a box of oranges. The weather down there has been good, and both of them are benefiting from the climate. Mr. and Mrs. William Theodore Clinton Welborn have moved to Wilkes county, where "Pap" Welborn is going back to farming after 22 years at the Print Works. Mr. and Mrs. Slim Seawell are visiting in Fort Myers, Fla. Mrs. John McAdams has returned home from a visit to her parents in Ocala, Fla. Mrs. Wilma McAdams and Mrs. Donnie B. Eagleman are out this week on account of the death of their father. Among those reporting to the draft this week are Charles Montgomery, Paul Brown, and Charlie Gales. Mr. T. S. Horry left Tuesday to spend a month with his mother, Mrs. C. B. Guinn, of Tallahassee, Fla. We asked Mr. Horry to let us have one of his articles for our Snappers' column, and he has given us a piece on a new type of monetary system. We are printing this in 3 parts because of its length. Part I follows:

Would a Monetary System based on Commodity values be practical at this time, or possible any time in the future?

In taking the negative side of the question, it must be definitely understood exactly what this question embodies.

It is not a question of right in the matter, but what is practical, or I will say, this must necessarily mean possible right now or price control in the future.

The Sherman Anti-Trust law was passed a number of years ago, and if it had been enforced, or I should say, if it could have been enforced, would have brought about real commodity values, but only to a very small extent has it been of any value except from a standpoint of sentiment. I will illustrate this. In our different towns and cities throughout the country, there has been formed Merchant Associations, Chambers of Commerce, and Rotary Clubs. The object of the last two mentioned is to promote business and development of their different towns and cities. To some extent they do this, but if this was all they did, they would represent a very necessary adjunct to any town, but the members of the Merchants' Association, in a large measure, belong to the other organizations, and this affects, in a great measure, any value they are to business or the building up of any town, because the three, in most towns, represent as a whole, a plan to pay the producer the very smallest price and charge the consumer the very highest price, and through the power they have, they outlay any monetary system based on possible values from a Sherman Anti-Trust standpoint, or commodity values.

I think if you will give the matter your careful consideration, you will understand that these gentlemen are very short-sighted, for while through their methods they kill business and development, in the face of competition they lose sight of the fact that their business would grow with the growth of the town, if commodity values were in force, and would have the advantage of being already on the ground, which not only gives every one an equal chance, but would attract large investments of capital to their town. These prospective investors would see that conditions, the low cost of living, etc., would make it attractive to invest their money in your town. This would bring about progress and development, because it would show that in the face of outside competition their investment would be a paying one. (continued next week)

Attendance Contest

Here are attendance percentages for all departments which have reported their absentees for the week of February 28 to March 4. Due to the fact that several departments cannot complete their absentee totals before the Textorian goes to press, figures cannot be published until the end of the second week. Inaccuracies in absentee figures reported last week were due to this fact. Percentages and comparisons will be published whenever they are available.

The first month of the contest will end on Saturday night, March 25.

ODE TO A NOSE

"A poor benighted heathen, with a jungle for a home,
Who'd think my fame would spread afar, to lands across the foam?
I wasn't very handsome. I was not very bright;
But now they come to see my nose, the island's greatest sight.
My nose was once a simple nose, a little flat and bent.
But now my nose is not a nose, it is a monument.
So, tourists, take your place in line and for a modest fee,
Rub the nose that rubbed the nose of Mrs. Franklin D.
A thought has just occurred to me which I find rather stunning:
Since my nose rubbed the Roosevelt nose, will it too keep on running?"

That Prediction Qualified

We have heard rather pessimistic remarks in regard to the progress of the European war. The basis for such pessimism is the slow progress the allied troops are making in Italy, coupled with the fact that General Eisenhower had predicted that the European war would be won during the year 1944.

What we are afraid many of those who are now pessimistic are overlooking is that General Eisenhower, as well as other military leaders, qualified their predictions that the European war would be won this year. Without exception, they emphasized the fact that in order for victory to come this year there would have to be an all-out effort.

They meant that not only would those in the armed forces have to go all-out but also those of us behind the lines would have to do our utmost to support the war effort.

We still have hopes that the European war will be won in 1944, and the fact that our progress has been slow in Italy does not within itself indicate that we cannot overcome the enemy long before the end of this year.

It is most certain, however, that the greater our combined efforts are, the sooner the war will end. Every hour that we shorten the war will mean the saving of lives and suffering. In that connection we print below an editorial entitled "The Last Hour of the War". We trust that it will be well read, as its contents are extremely important.

The Last Hour of the War

No man knows when the last hour of the war will come. But it will come sooner as war production is increased tonight and tomorrow and tomorrow night. If this be not so, then all talk of production is folly.

Ending the war sooner—pulling the end closer to us even by the hour—can mean life and death to thousands.

In one hour a machine gun can spit out more than 10,000 bullets.

In one hour an anti-aircraft gun can fire more than 1,000 shells.

In one hour a battleship can deliver more than 500 tons of armor-piercing steel over fourteen miles.

In one hour a group of 1,000 bombers can drop 2,000 tons of bombs, badly damaging a city the size of Cleveland or St. Louis or Los Angeles or even Philadelphia or Chicago.

Every hour of the war is important—but ending the war one hour sooner can be your goal and mine.

No one knows exactly what happened in World War I, in that last hour between ten and eleven a.m. on November 11th. But throughout the morning of November 11th, according to the casualty lists published in the New York Times, 1,021 American boys were either killed in action or seriously wounded.

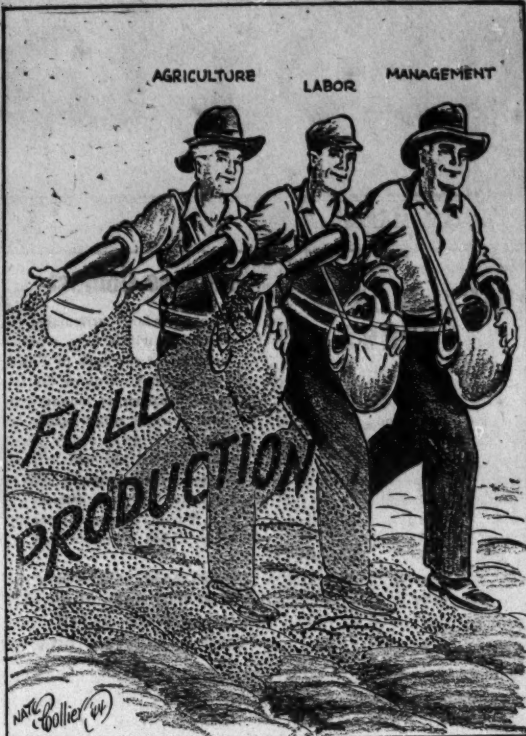

And the tempo of the war, compared with World War I, is like a tropical hurricane compared with a March wind.

So when you and I help break a production bottleneck, help speed production with safety methods, we have a right to feel that we are helping end the war seconds sooner. And any one of us, who by his own effort quickens necessary production to the tune of 100,000 manhours in a year, can rightfully hope that he may be helping end the war by even one hour.

Tonight and tomorrow—the hours we put in speeding production are the most important hours in our service to our country. They may well be the most important hours in our personal lives.

Perhaps someone you know and loved was killed on the morning of November 11, 1918. Perhaps someone you know and love will remain alive in the last hour of this war, because you did what you could today, tonight and tomorrow. —H. F. Barnes, in "Better Light - Better Sight" News.

THE SOWERS

SPEAKING OF HEALTH

By DR. VICTOR G. HEISER

Medical Consultant Nation Association of Manufacturers

The Modern Diet

In our grandparents' childhood every one depended on the old vegetable cellar for fresh fruit during the long, white winter months. About the only fresh fruit available through the winter was apples stored away, often some distance from the house.

At Christmastime, an orange was a real treat, a banana was a delicacy, while a grapefruit was unheard of. Grandma, no doubt, grew some parsley or chives in the window box for something green for savor during the cold spell.

However, new techniques and developments of the food industry have improved these conditions. We now have modern refrigeration, greenhousing, transportation and dehydration, practically eliminating the time of year when a fruit or vegetable is "out of season."

Ready-cooked foods can now be bought in place of the fresh ones which cannot be bought, full of vitamins and minerals and as succulent as when preserved.

Today, it is unnecessary to look for the first dandelion shoots to make up for dietary deficiencies suffered through the winter since green and fresh foods are consumed all year 'round.

The American standard of living is being maintained and greatly advanced by the food industry even in wartime.

Hall Jr., Hanes Hosiery Mills, Winston Salem; H. E. Williams, Marshall Field and Co., Spray.

The Conference will get under way with the General Session on Thursday morning. While the program cannot be announced at this time, two nationally-known speakers will be present for the opening session. The afternoon of May 18th will be devoted to sectional meetings, as will the afternoon of the second day. The annual banquet will be held on Thursday evening and one of the finest banquet programs ever given has been arranged for this affair.

Alvin T. Haley Heads Diagnosis Campaign For Tuberculosis

The campaign, which will be held in conjunction with the nationwide campaign, will emphasize the absolute necessity of early diagnosis of tuberculosis and the chest x-ray as the foundation of examination for tuberculosis.

"I am accepting the chairmanship of this campaign as I would any job in civilian defense," said Mr. Haley. "Tuberculosis has always increased during war. It's up in Europe and Asia. As yet, the United States has not had any set-backs in the fight against the disease. And we must not have a set-back. If TB increases here as a result of this war, it will mean that Americans have thoughtlessly killed Americans."

"The medical profession tells us that tuberculosis is an unnecessary disease, a criminal waste of life and a community disgrace, as well as a tremendous community liability," he added. "Since early diagnosis is the first step in preventing this criminal waste, I am proud to be appointed chairman of the Early Diagnosis Campaign, and we urge you to communicate with your local tuberculosis office—308 Piedmont Bldg., telephone 4234 for information on how to get an x-ray."

The tired business man arrived home. The cook had left that morning without giving notice. The market had been depressed all day and he found a farewell note from his wife. He knew that a shot would end all his troubles. So he opened a bottle and took one.

Doris, a six-year-old child from London's East End, was evacuated to the country. The farmer's wife took Doris for a tour around the place. She showed her the garden, the chickens, the tables, and finally they arrived at the pigpen where an enormous sow reclined in the sun.

"Big, isn't she, Doris?" said the farmer's wife.

"And no wonder," Doris replied. I saw her yesterday and she had ten

Current Soup Cookery

A smart buy, both for your points and cash this year, is a can of condensed cream of tomato soup. For a single can contains the makings of many a different dish. First, of course, it makes a super-soup... the old-time kind that tastes fresh off the vine—using sun-ripe tomatoes, real cream, and spice.

Another variation on this tomato concentrate, is an opulent aspic salad. To the tomato soup just add a little gelatin for standability and stretch, some seasonings like celery and onion, a bay leaf, distilled vinegar water, and a dusting of red pepper. Mold in your favorite ring pan, and serve with fish or chicken salad heaped in the center.

Or again, you might prefer to make a sizzling cocktail sauce by brightening this pure tomato paste with Worcestershire, red pepper sauce, horseradish, and 57 sauce. It's elegant on oysters, adds fire to shrimp, is fervent with crab or lobster.

For a down-to-earth device, try converting this condensed cream of tomato soup into a real spaghetti sauce. Some onion, olive oil, water, condiments, and ground meat furnish the

The young man was rather shy. After she had thrown her arms around him and kissed him for bringing her a bouquet of flowers, he jumped up and grabbed his hat.

"Oh, don't go! she said, as he made for the door. "I didn't mean to offend you."

"Oh, I'm not offended," he replied. "I'm going for more flowers."

Auctioneer: "What am I offered for this beautiful bust of Robert Burns?" Man in crowd: "That ain't Burns; that's Shakespeare."

Auctioneer: "Well, folks, the joke's on me. That shows what I know about the Bible."

An artist painting in the country had a farmer spectator.

"Ah," said the artist, "perhaps you, too, are a lover of the beauties of Nature. Have you seen the golden fingers of the dawn spreading across the eastern sky, the red-stemmed, sulphurous islets floating in the lake of fire in the west, ragged clouds at midnight, blotting out the shuddering moon?"

"Nope," said the farmer. "not lately. I've been on the wagon for over a year."

Rev. Mill Starch Bags

Starch bags when washed and bleached, may be used in making many useful household articles. At the last Community club meeting the ladies were delighted with the fringed luncheon set and napkins with small red checked gingham squares, appliqued in the corners, a child's tray cloth and napkin with a design of ducks, outlined in yellow, and a pair of hemstitched pillow cases. Other articles easily made are laundry bags, shoe bags and small table cloths. Starch bags, when washed and bleached, give the appearance of fine quality Indian Head or Linene material. At a small cost housewives may add to their supply of pretty and durable household necessities.

Mrs. Mick Fulk had two children's dresses on display. These were neatly and daintily made of durable material for less than fifty cents each.

Everyone is invited to join the clothing class which meets on Tuesdays and Thursdays in the club room.

Health-Recreation Department News

The Piedmont basketball tournament in which the Cone Memorial YMCA was co-sponsor with the City Recreation department and the Greensboro YMCA was the largest basketball tournament ever held in Greensboro. Eighty-two teams competing in play beginning Tuesday, March 7, and continuing until Saturday night, March 11, with an average of 15 games per night is by no means a light schedule for a city with gymnasium facilities as widely dispersed as Greensboro.

Out of the four teams entered from the Cone Memorial YMCA one, the White Oak Junior varsity came thru and won the trophy in their class. Both the Proximity teams, the Reds and the Blues were eliminated in their first games by the very close margin of one point. Altamabaw-Osipee nosed out ahead of the Blue team 30 to 29 in the last minute after trailing throughout the game. It was a hard game to lose. The Reds lost to the Winston Salem All Stars 36 to 35 in another either team's game until the final whistle. Those are the kind of games that are remembered by the spectators.

It was a coincidence that the White Oak Y. Bees, a boys team eliminated the Curry High Juniors, in their first game of the tournament, and then to have the White Oak Junior Varsity defeat the Curry high team in the finals was a case of double dosing the bitters for a bunch of nice boys from a fine school with a grand basketball coach in the person of Mr. Herbert Parks. The Lindley High Juniors got revenge partly for the Curry boys by romping on the much lighter Bees 48 to 23, eliminating them from the tournament in the third round.

The White Oak Juniors drew a bye in the first round, defeated the Dixie Soda Shop in the second and went to victory over the strong Danville Independents in the semi-finals and wound up by disposing with Curry in the finals 30 to 25.

It was a dark moment for Coach Smith of the W. O. Juniors when Red Leonard fouled out early in the second half and Quince Caviness was injured almost immediately following. But, thanks to trainer Bell, Caviness was labeled "out" for the game.

"Well, you see," she went on, "I have a new assistant in the office and she's pretty darned smart. Maybe I was beginning to fall into a routine. Anyway, the very first day she suggested a quicker way to do something. And I woke up and decided I'd better put patched up and went back into the game in time to steady the faltering team and finish the game ahead altho the margin had been lessened considerably.

The White Oak Mustangs defeated the Proximity Havoc 28 to 27, Monday afternoon, March 13, on the Proximity Y. floor. T. Sewell's team was expected to have walked away with the Mustangs in their first meeting of a series to decide the champions of the boys aviation league, but the Mustangs proved to be the faster of the two teams. They maintained a small lead throughout the game, but the Havoc almost worked havoc with that lead in the final period. Gene Bryson and Bob Weaver were the outstanding players for the Mustangs, altho the whole team played bang up good game. Morgan and Patterson were the featured players for the Havoc. In all fairness to T. Sewell, we will say he had an off day and a couple of sore lower limbs.

Healthy Competition

Paula dropped in Saturday for a whirlwind call. "Whew!" She collapsed into a chair. "What a week!"

"Busy?" I asked. An insane question, but it slips out.

"Yes," I could see her mind was on something. "I love to be busy, though. You know, Susan—competition is a pretty good thing!"

I laughed. "Have you just found that out?"

"Well, you see," she went on, "I have a new assistant in the office and she's pretty darned smart. Maybe I was beginning to fall into a routine. Anyway, the very first day she suggested a quicker way to do something. And I woke up and decided I'd better put my brain to work. Guess I was beginning to feel my job was a cozy little niche and I could just go through the motions.

"Really," she said, her blue eyes earnest. "I'm grateful to that girl for putting me on my toes!"

"That's the right attitude, Paula," I told her. "Of course business men found out long ago that competition was the breath of progress. Without it I don't suppose we'd have half our wonderful inventions and developments.

"It's only," I added, "when competition is mean or underhanded that it's bad. Given and taken in the spirit of fair play, it's healthy, as you've just found out."

Paula is an honest young soul. I'll bet she and her assistant get to be fast friends and help each other along to bigger and better jobs.

PICK-UPS from Cesar Cone School

FOURTH GRADE—Room 8

We'll All Be Happy

You know I love our flag, and my country too; But the people across the sea they are unhappy.

But let's keep our flag in our hearts, and love it forever. And when the boys who are in the service come home

We'll all let out our flags, for we love our country. When they come home we will all be happy.

Some will sing, some will shout, the church bells will ring. The cars will stop, to let the lines march by

And all the world will be happy. Arcola Johnson

The above poem was written by Arcola Johnson one day last week after we had had a lesson about the American flag. The class liked it so well that we decided to send it in to Pick-Ups along with our weekly news.

We have written a play called "Six Houses For Rent" and are practicing hard to have it ready for our chapel program. If the measles, mumps and chicken pox don't hold our practice back too much we will have it ready next week.

FIFTH GRADE—Room 15

We have a new pupil in our room. His name is Edgar Hudgins, and we are glad to have him.

One of our pupils moved to Brown Summit, and we were very glad to hear that she would get to finish this year at Cesar Cone school. Her name is Lois Maunne.

There have been five bonds bought in our room. They were bought by Billy Durham, Frank James, Jack Bradford and Miss McCook. We want to be a 10 per cent Victory room as soon as possible.

SPECIAL ITEM

Nancy Nicholson, a member of Miss Grubbs' room, is acting as reporter for the three Seventh grades. All news reported from these grades for the next few weeks will come from the pen of Nancy. We hope there will be others who will want to act as reporters for the school.

SEVENTH GRADE—Room 24

We are glad to have Barbara Newton back at school and we are also glad to have Eloise Burgess back too. They had the mumps and the measles. That was the first time either of them had missed a day at school.

Paula is an honest young soul. I'll bet she and her assistant get to be fast friends and help each other along to bigger and better jobs.
